The band's original lineup played several concerts, opened for the American crossover thrash band Lich King, toured locally, and performed at several festivals in southwestern France before recording their self-produced debut EP, 'Feed the Demon', followed later by the single 'Dishonored.'

After a five-year break, the band reformed, recruiting a new bassist and drummer. They returned to the stage with several concerts in France. This was followed by the release of their debut album, 'Gemini,' in January 2025, and the music video for 'Genomorphis.'
